Corinne Erni is a curator, catalyst, and cultural strategist who has spearheaded and branded interdisciplinary art programs. From 2010-2015, she built up the New Museum's IDEAS CITY, a biennial arts festival that explores the future of cities with arts and culture as driving force. She is the Curator for Special Projects at the Parrish Art Museum, Southampton, USA.

As co-founder of ARTPORT_making waves, she co-curated biennial competitions of short art videos about global warming, "Cool Stories for When the Planet Gets Hot", and traveling exhibitions such as "(Re-) Cycles of Paradise", which explored the interconnectedness of gender and climate change and was first shown at the United Nations Climate Change Conference in Copenhagen in 2009.
