Cristiana Voinov is an ethicist, performer and editor based out of Oslo, Norway. Originally from Romania, Cristiana is a University of Toronto alumnus, having graduated with an Honours Bachelor of Arts degree specializing in Biomedical Ethics. She is currently pursuing her Master of Philosophy at SUM — The Centre for Development and the Environment at the University of Oslo. Her thesis will explore performance as a moral motivator in relation to climate action/mitigation. In addition to her studies, she is an editor for the interdisciplinary environmentalist journal, Tvergastein, and a facilitator for the UiO United Nations Student Union, most recently organizing and moderating a panel on the demobilization of guerrillas in Colombia.

A former math and science instructor for high school students, Cristiana is heavily involved in community theatre and has worked as a performer for several years. She believes a meeting of science and humanities is necessary to facilitate meaningful change towards a sustainable future. When not writing, you can find her reading science fiction or eating banana bread under the watchful/hungry eye of her cat, Lenore.
